

LL Cool J

Breakthrough

I Need a Beat helped demonstrate demand for the emerging Def Jam operation. Radio then paired LL's aggressive vocal attack with stripped-down production that left enormous space around his voice.

His Kangol hats, tracksuits, chains, stance, and lip-licking performance manner became recognizable visual codes. The look was not decoration; it was part of how audiences understood the records.